Plumbing Apprenticeship

What do plumbers do? Plumbers install, maintain, and repair various types of piping systems and fixtures. The exact responsibilities of a plumber depend on the particular project type. Plumbers work with the various tools and materials to install, remove, maintain, extend, and alter plumbing systems. Plumbing systems include sanitary drainage, storm drainage, special wastes, vent systems, public or private water systems and gas piping within or adjacent to buildings. Plumbers layout and design piping systems, follow blueprints, and must know what types of tools and materials are required for each job. Plumbers cut, thread, solder, weld, and glue pipe and fittings together. Once a piping system is installed, plumbers install fixtures, such as bathtubs, showers, toilets, water heaters, and dishwashers.

Pipefitting Apprenticeship

What do pipefitters do? A pipefitter, also known as a steamfitter, organizes, assembles, creates, and maintains mechanical piping systems that must withstand high pressure. These piping systems are often industrial, including heating and cooling systems, and include steam, ventilation, hydraulics, chemicals, and fuel. Pipefitters install piping of all sizes and in a variety of materials including carbon steel, copper, cast iron, plastic, fiberglass, stainless steel, and other special alloys and types.

Heating, Air Conditioning, and Refrigeration Apprenticeship

What do heating, air conditioning, and refrigeration mechanics do? Heating, air conditioning, and refrigeration mechanics and installers—often called HVACR technicians—work on heating, ventilation, cooling, and refrigeration systems that control the temperature and air quality in buildings.

Heating and air conditioning systems control the temperature, humidity, and overall air quality in homes, businesses, and other buildings. By providing a climate-controlled environment, refrigeration systems make it possible to preserve food, medicine, and other perishable items.

Some HVACR technicians specialize in one or more specific aspects of HVACR, such as installation, including start, test, and balance, service, maintenance, and repair of residential, commercial, or industrial equipment and systems.

Many HVACR technicians sell service contracts to their clients, providing periodic maintenance of heating, cooling, and refrigeration systems. Services often include inspecting, cleaning, replacing belts and filters, and checking refrigerant levels.
